

Insidious Heart: When Black and White is the Choice

Race relations and racism in America has come to the forefront in the latest George Zimmerman trial, and more recently the Michael Brown shooting incident. In this race-centered novel, Teej and Lowanda have a problem: hes white and shes black. Their fathers are both prejudiced, and for different reasons. In their heyday, the two men would have gone to great lengths to prevent the relationship from continuing a day further. When Teej reveals his dating intentions to his father, his father explodes and predictably condemns the arrangement. But Teej has discovered a dark secret about his father, who happens to be the mayor of the town Teej lives in, that can never be revealed. His father must conceal his secret, while trying to prevent his son from dating a black woman. Racial tensions are high. After being mugged in Chicago, Lowandas father is rescued by an unlikely hero. It takes Mr. Smith a while to acknowledge that he got mugged by his own people and that a complete stranger came to his rescue. After years of hatred, can their hearts change? What influences on a persons life make him want to hate to such a degree?
