

In this the first story of the Boy Town series, young gay boys who attend Alston High School are bullied by members of the Meatheads gang. Jamie is rescued by Quentin when he is being pissed upon (literally) by the Meatheads. Up until this point Jamie and Quentin have regarded themselves as losers, part of a group of poverty-stricken under-achievers who, seemingly, are doomed to be loners. However the rescue of Jamie by Quentin sparks off a new era at Alston High and the boys start to draw strength and inspiration from each other. Glory Boys is a gay romance about high school boys finding themselves and each other. A heart-warming story, it is full of Kevin Armstrong's subversive humour and his insights into gay life. Excerpt: Jamie woke early the following morning as golden autumnal light stole into the derelict caravan. Where am I? he wondered. And then he realized that someone was lying in the bed next to him. A beautiful lissome boy with golden hair and a flaccid cock lying against his thigh. Then the memories came flooding back. The Meatheads gang. The jets of stinking piss. The caves. The leech sucking the blood out of the other boy's leg. This was a momentous time Jamie considered. A time of firsts. First occasions. The first time someone else had pulled his cock. And now the first time he'd shared a bed with another boy. A few minutes later both Jamie and Quentin were headed for the green waters of the Blue Gum Swamp for a cleansing swim and another shared wank before Quentin cooked some breakfast of fish he'd caught the night before. Quentin then dressed himself because he had to go to school. He would take with him a forged note supposedly from Jamie's mom explaining that her boy was suffering from an attack of asthma. With a sinking feeling Jamie wished he was going to school as well. However he knew he would have to go home and somehow try to explain why he had been out all night. As he was having a crap in a ditch that Quentin had dug at the side of the clearing, Jamie looked around at the tent and the wrecked caravan and figured that he'd arrived in a kind of paradise. He knew that he would return here to be with Quentin as often as he could. He now knew that he loved being touched and manipulated by the other boy and wondered if this was the beginning of that mysterious state that people called 'love.'
